“The more you read, the more things you will know. The more that you learn, the more places you’ll go.”

–Dr. Seuss, I Can Read With My Eyes Shut!

October is my favorite month of the year. I love the leaves changing, pumpkins, apples, festivals, football, cooler weather, shorter days, kids back in school and getting together with my friends in the GLMS Alliance. The fall is a great time to get involved.

On Tuesday, October 16, at 10 a.m. everyone is invited to GLMS headquarters at The Old Medical School Building, 101 W. Chestnut St. Come and peruse a fantastic collection known as the Wolf Art Gallery. It was named after Dr. Richard Wolf, the former medical director of Kosair Children’s Hospital and project manager for the renovation and revitalization of The Old Medical School Building. The amazing exhibit includes pieces created by former medical students who attended class in the old building, their professors and family members. While there, we will also have the opportunity to learn more about the wonderful work of the Greater Louisville Medical Society Foundation and its medical missions and scholarship initiatives.

Another reason to love the fall is that October is National Book Month. As the weather cools and the days get shorter, many of us will enjoy reading a good book, perhaps in some cozy nook within reach of a warm cup of cocoa or in the company of good friends in the embrace of heartfelt conversation. Sound good? Then please join our book club on Tuesday, October 25, 10:30 a.m. at Heine Brothers’ Coffee, 119 Chenoweth Lane in St. Matthews. We will be discussing the highly acclaimed The Thousand Autumns of Jacob de Zoet by David Mitchell.

Used medical books are needed to fill these shelves at Waggener High School, as well as at Moore and Valley.

As long as we are on the subject of books, I want to remind everyone that the GLMS Alliance is teaming with the Jefferson County Public Schools to collect used medical books for Moore, Valley and Waggener high school students in the JCPS career and technical education program for medicine, health and the environment. The book drive offers a great impetus for us to finally get together some of those books that have been lying around the house gathering dust and put them into the hands of some scholars eager for knowledge and insight into health care careers. Books can be dropped off with Meredith Dreher (KMA Alliance) at the KMA building, 4965 U.S. Highway 42, Suite 2000, or with Mary Hess, administrative assistant with the GLMS Foundation, at The Old Medical School Building.

No tricks, just treats. Join us for some great fall fun in October. Costumes are optional! LM
